Game Called
Abner Doubleday never dreamed his creation would evolve into something other than a playground. Baseball is now a sad spectacle; a battleground between management and players, with the sport itself the likely victim, followed by both parties to a senseless dispute.

Players want a greater management contribution to the player pension fund. Owners, 11 of 20 who suffered (reportedly) financial losses in the 1971 season, are adamant.

The fans either don't understand or don't like the strike situation; neither do we.

Baseball regards the professional player quite handsomely. A case in point is 22-year old Vida Blue, an outstanding pitcher who was offered a $50,000 annual contract, but on the advice of one of those lawyer-managers, turned it down. Now another long-haired lawyer is leading the players into trouble.

While this goes on, Cub Manager Leo Durocher draws some $23,500 pension fund while still in the game. He is getting the maximum. The least qualified player, in time, will draw some $5200 annual pension, plus social security or other funds.

We presume no person is ever satisfied with his emolument, when most of the fans would be delighted to play almost for free. You sure can't beat the working hours.

Baseball players never had it so good; or needed better advice so badly.—Nashville News

Plan Ahead to Reduce Tax Payments

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — It is too late now to do much about last year's taxes, but if you were to plan your affairs so as to reduce next year's payment you might consider marriage, having children, going into debt, buying rental property.

You might also consider purchasing municipal bonds, investing in cattle-feeding, plunging into oil exploration or risking your money on stocks in search of capital gains.

In any of these decisions you wouldn't be alone. You would instead be in partnership with the tax collector, Uncle Sam himself, who feels that for social and economic reasons you should receive special handling.

You can't easily explain the subtle shift in the role of taxes from that of financing government to that of social change, but it has taken place. Through the lure of tax breaks, government directs millions of personal and business decisions.

The married couple generally make out better than the single person. And the creation of children, which places more demands on social institutions, results in deductions.

The person who runs up debts can deduct the interest paid on them. The owner of rental property can obtain quick depreciation deductions and then resell to another owner, who can begin the process all over again.

Municipal bonds are tax-free partly because one governmental agency doesn't tax another, partly because the federal government feels it must encourage a flow of money into municipal improvements.

Cattle-feeding and oil exploration are considered risky enterprises, and economically desirable as well, so the government feels it must make it possible to defer or reduce the tax on profits so made.

The capital gains tax limits to 25 per cent the tax obligation on long-term profits from the sale of capital assets, such as stock or property, in order to encourage investments.

The ordinary individual who lives an uncomplicated life generally cannot expect to benefit from these tax shelters or exceptions or incentives or whatever they might be called. Usually it takes money to save on taxes.

The assumptions on which tax privileges are based has disturbed Congress for years and may eventually lead to an overall examination. But that still leaves another problem area: subjectivity of application.

So complex have the laws become, and so open to interpretation, that the same question put to several different Internal Revenue Service offices is likely to elicit as many different answers.

To simplify the tax law so that everyone pays a percentage of income, no matter how earned, wouldn't be the answer. That would tax the poor unjustly, reducing usable income in some instances to the poverty level.

There are no easy ways of simplifying the situation. But there is one simple question that deserves a clear answer:

Are taxes a means of financing government or a system of rewards and penalties to bring about social change?

Log Most Space Flights

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Apollo 16 is John W. Young's fourth trip into space, tying him with astronaut James A. Lovell for the most space flights by an individual.

But Young won't challenge Lovell's record for the most total time in space. On his four missions, Gemini 7 and 12 and Apollos 8 and 13, Lovell logged 29 days, 19 hours and 5 minutes.

The 12-day Apollo 16 mission if successfully completed would bring Young's total to 23 days, 6 hours and 19 minutes. Young previously flew on Gemini 3 and 16 and on Apollo 16.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Looking backward into my childhood becomes more and more difficult as I grow older, as it does for most of us.

But there are those fleeting moments when a familiar sight or sound or smell transports me to yesteryear with a feeling of exhilaration I seldom experience these days.

Such was the case on a recent warm spring afternoon as gusty winds sang through the trees around our house and the clothes on a neighbor's backyard line cracked whiplike in the breezes.

I was looking for some greenish hint of the season among the matted brown grass when from the vacant lot down the street there appeared silhouetted against the fluff white clouds some brightly colored objects soaring high into the air.

In the few brief moments it took my memory to recall the image of a small boy standing in an open field tugging on a thin white string that trailed off into the sky, my two young sons also noticed the airborne objects.

Off to the corner variety store, where I discovered that the kite—once a 15-cent toy—has changed considerably.

No longer are they made of tissue thin paper and brittle wooden sticks. Today, thanks to

Nursing Homes Inconsistent Auditors Say

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nursing home patients may be getting shortchanged because of a maze of inconsistent state policies regulating Medicaid, say federal auditors.

What's worse, says the General Accounting Office, the federal government has done nothing to correct the situation although it's pumping millions into the program.

The GAO report covered payment policies and rates for nursing-home care in states with Medicaid programs. The widely varying policies can contribute to lower quality patient care, the GAO concluded.

The federal share of costs of such care escalated from $323 million in fiscal 1968 to $837 million in fiscal 1971, the GAO noted. Nevertheless, the report said, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has not:

—Issued "appropriate criteria and requirements to guide the states in establishing rates of payment."

—Enforced the law requiring that state plans include a description of methods and procedures used in setting payment rates.

—Instituted effective procedures for evaluating the methods states use to establish such rates.

"In the absence of HEW criteria," GAO told Congress, "the states have adopted methods for establishing rates of payment for nursing home care which have resulted in differing payment policies and rates."

Such differences, the audit report added, "could have an adverse effect not only on the cost of the Medicaid program but also on the level and quality of care given to Medicaid patients."

Medical Rarity in Child

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Theresa Johnson, 3, has four functioning kidneys, a medical phenomenon so rare that the odds are 20,000 to 1 against it.

Dr. George B. Vassilakis said Theresa's condition was discovered while she was undergoing treatment for a kidney infection at Grace Hospital, where she has been a patient since March 29.

And why should this be so? Thinking at the moment is that the leisure market has much to do with it.

They Don't Make Them Like They Used To modern science, a trash-bag-thick film of gaudy plastic is stretched over a frame of pencil-thick plastic rods.

Gone too is the cotton string that often proved no match for the stiff April winds. In its place are balls of stranded nylon twine with labels proudly declaring the product's superior tensile strength.

Most alarming was the inflationary impact on my childhood toy. Once you could buy many afternoons of entertainment and thrills for the better part of a quarter.

Alas, those days are gone forever, and I plunked down $3 to arm my sons with the latest in aerodynamic design, strength and maneuverability.

From the label I learned that strips of multicolored cloth tied painstakingly in streamer fashion as a tail to stabilize the diamond-shaped bird was a thing of the past. The newest models resemble giant hawks in flight and I cringed as one of the boys chose one vividly imprinted with two huge bloodshot eyes that stared down at you from on high.

Despite the changes wrought by times and the economy, I quickly found that becoming a child again is not as difficult as I had thought.

I craned my neck toward the bright sky and tugged with a secret thrill against the string as it slipped through my fingers and arched into the clouds.

Ping Pong Diplomacy Improves Relationships

By JOHN RODERICK
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — Signs of Chinese relaxation at home and abroad continue to multiply a year after Ping Pong diplomacy dramatically improved relations between the United States and Mainland China.

The indicators of change are, in some cases, not much bigger than a table tennis bat. But taken together they add up to a mood the Chinese have not known for years.

Within China, officials have encouraged women to abandon their drab unisex look in favor of brighter and more cheerful clothes. They also have announced the start of a new effort to Romanize the Chinese written language. Once accomplished this would partly remove the barrier to China's communication with the rest of the world.

Recently, Chinese television viewers and moviegoers have been treated to livelier fare than the usual propaganda. There have been few American documentaries and movies so far, but the idea that they would be shown at all was unthinkable 13 months ago.

At the same time, Americans have had a chance to see the full-length color film of "The Red Regiment of Women," the ballet witnessed by President and Mrs. Nixon during their February visit to Peking.

The new Chinese-American relationship which emerged from Nixon's week-long visit to China appears to be surviving the American air and naval escalation of the war in Vietnam. Although the Chinese predictably have condemned it, they have not halted the cultural and other exchanges begun in April 1971 with the arrival of the U.S. table tennis team and three American correspondents.

Now China's championship Ping Pong team is touring the United States. The Chinese players have been received by Americans with a warmth rivaling the reception given the American team in China.

The Chinese have entered energetically into operations of the United Nations. They are represented at the U.N. Conference on Trade and Development and they have expressed approval of U.N. peacekeeping operations.

Nearer a trickle than a flood, Americans of many political hues journey to Peking. They range from Black Panthers to the majority and minority leaders of the U.S. Senate.

The Chinese and American ambassadors in Paris explore ways of expanding the exchange, now lopsidedly in the Americans' favor. But there is little evidence that agreement will be reached soon.

Trade, one of the areas which deeply interests Americans, has made only a modest beginning. A few American businessmen are at the annual trade fair in Canton.

San Francisco Sheriff Makes Many Changes

By JEANNINE YEOMANS
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The city that brought you the flower children now brings you its new sheriff who: 1. Sports a peace symbol on his gold badge.

2. Offers to rent "rooms" at the county jail at $10 a night so the public can see what it's like to be behind bars.

3. Sponsors rock concerts to raise money for jail inmates, and dances on the stage himself.

4. Makes a surprise midnight visit to the jail, declares it "disgusting as hell," and launches reforms.

"Support Your Local Sheriff" took a new twist when former San Francisco policeman Richard D. Hongisto, 35, took office four months ago after defeating a 60-year-old incumbent who had held the job for 15 years.

Hongisto quit the police force in 1970 after 10 years to work as a television reporter. He says he decided while lying in bed one Sunday morning last July that he could be sheriff.

With the support of young people, liberals, minorities and the city's politically organized homosexuals, Hongisto won over three contenders who split the law-and-order vote. He received 36 percent of the vote.

Like his badge, his campaign posters featured the peace symbol, and he described his opponent as a "fascist."

Bumpers Voted Absentee Ballot

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Dale Bumpers did not try to influence the recent school board election in Charleston, according to Archie Schaffer III, an aide to the governor.

Schaffer said Bumpers voted in the election of Bill Hiatt because he was a longtime friend, but that the governor "had absolutely nothing else to do with the election."

Mrs. Shirley Stubblefield of Charleston, wife of James Stubblefield, who lost the election by 25 votes to Hiatt, said Bumpers used his vote and the vote of 17 patients in his nursing home at Charleston to help elect Hiatt.

Mrs. Stubblefield said that of the 23 absentee ballots cast in the election, 17 came from the nursing home. She said the governor, his wife and their housekeeper cast absentee ballots from Little Rock.

nents a "hawks who were trying to solve social problems in the United States with more money," more weapons and more men. It hasn't worked in Vietnam and it won't work here."

On March 26, the sheriff raised $14,000 for jail inmates by throwing a rock concert. Hongisto danced on the stage in a pin-striped business suit, two-some performances with various women partners, until 2 a.m.

Preceded from these "jail-house rocks" as he calls them are earmarked to buy TV sets and other recreational equipment for the jails.

Hongisto says he donates a third of his $26,337 annual salary to a youth group, as well as $150 a month to rent a storefront in the Haight-Ashbury district, once the heart of the hippie culture. Here he plans to sell art objects made by jail inmates who will get the money when they are released.

"I'm a liberal, maybe even a radical," the sheriff said in an interview during a typical 14-hour work day. He was dressed in a grey flannel suit and vest that made him look more like a banker than a sheriff.

"No doubt conservative people see things differently than I do. But the fact is we're getting many things accomplished, and that's the point," Hongisto said.

All crime fighting in San Francisco is done by the city police department. The 320-man sheriff's office runs the jails, provides court bailiffs and serves legal papers.

The new sheriff's major efforts to date have been for the 1,200 inmates in the county's two jails. Hongisto has begun a new drug counseling program, instituted employment and psychiatric counseling for all inmates and a venereal disease treatment program for the women. He has eliminated censorship of prisoners' mail and ordered deputies to ignore hair length when choosing trustees. His own dark hair is cut medium-length.

The sheriff surprised his deputies Jan. 17 with an unannounced midnight inspection of the women's jail. Because he took a reporter to San Francisco, he forgot that over-crowding was the women's problem. The jail was filled with inmates who were not supposed to be there.

Scientists Say Rocks Are Intriguing

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 16's explorers, possessors of two scientifically intriguing white rocks, plan to drive halfway up a moon mountain today in another quest for volcanic remnants and ancient lunar soil.

John W. Young and Charles M. Duke Jr., who joked and bounced over the Descartes plateau for seven hours Friday, collected the white rocks on their first lunar drive. Scientists said they could be important in understanding the moon's formation.

Major target for the second drive was Stone Mountain, a 1,500-foot peak 2.6 miles south of the Descartes plateau landing site.

The seven-hour excursion begins at 10:36 a.m. EST.

Young and Duke hope to steer their moon car around boulders and craters about 700 feet up the terraced mountain to gather rocks at various levels. Some of the material might have been heaved up from 500 feet below the surface by volcanic action.

The activity follows a busy first day on the moon during which the moon men set up a scientific station and erected a fifth American flag on the surface before starting their driving expedition.

The science station lost its top priority experiment, a $12 million heat flow probe, when Young accidentally stumbled over a cable.

Young apologized many times during the day and asked if a way could be figured to fix it. Ground controllers said they thought there was little chance although various possibilities were under study.

Mission Control cut Sunday's third excursion from seven to five hours to give the moon men extra rest before they lift off late that day.

Thomas K. Mattingly II continued to orbit in the command vessel today, conducting scientific experiments.

Lunar geologists class Stone Mountain as a feature with a strong evidence of volcanism. They seek this evidence to learn if the moon was once a dynamic, evolving planet like the earth and to find out why it became dormant some four billion years ago.

Another goal today was to investigate a series of rimless craters which may have resulted from large fractures or fault zones.

Young and Duke, excited themselves and scientists at Mission Control Friday when they described the white rocks.

The astronauts said they fit the classic description of what geologists believe was a volcanic lava that flowed early in the moon's history.

Dr. Howard Wilshire of the U.S. Geological Survey said the two rocks could be remnants from an ancient volcanic flow or have come from a melt caused by meteorite impacts or a rock called anorthosite which some scientists believe composed the original lunar crust.

Among the 44 pounds of rocks Young and Duke gathered Friday were sampled flecked with green and black glass and others that were black and grey. One bulky rock weighed 14 pounds and Duke grunted a bit as he carried it to the moon car.

A color television camera relayed excellent views to Mission Control as the astronauts prowled over the surface on their scientific trek.

Scientists Find Ancient Culture

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — A Canadian scientist says archeological finds at Ozette, Wash., and Prince Rupert, B.C., indicate Indian culture on the North Pacific coast is thousands of years old.

Dr. George MacDonald, chief of the archeology division of the National Museums of Canada, says the finds are disproving theories that Indian culture flourished only after the arrival of white men.

"We know now that the cultures along the coast have been extremely stable over the past 5,000 years," MacDonald says.

It generally had been agreed previously that the culture flourished only after the fur trade pumped money into the tribal economies and European-type tools were imported, he says.

But he says digs at Prince Rupert have revealed a "whole range of carving tools" made from stone, mussel shells and the incisor teeth of rodents, while carved wooden objects predated the arrival of the white man have been found at the Ozette Village archeological site.

Helen and Sue Bottel The Generation Gap

When Friendship Should End
DEAR SUE AND HELEN:
I was sorry for this girl because she didn't know how to mix or attract boys, so I made her my special project. I showed her how to dress, act, talk—in fact, I created a different person out of her.

And I've created a monster! Well anyway, a rival—who does her darndest to take away every boy I like. Trouble is, she usually succeeds.

See, she's perfected MY personality, so that she is a better "me." Boys who are attracted to me, are sitting ducks for her because she can out-do me. And to think: I taught her! I valued her friendship but I'm beginning to hate her, too.

She is still best-friends with me, and I can't show my jealousy because she's only doing what I said. But does she have to brag every time a boy turns to her—away from me?—SUCCEEDED TOO WELL.

DEAR STW.:
You valued this girl's friend-

Tradition Passes Into History

LA GRANGE, Ga. (AP) — A tradition older than Georgia has passed into history with the refusal to renew the licenses of Troup County's four midwives.

The legality of midwives, who deliver babies in rural areas where physicians are few, ended with a ruling by the Georgia Department of Public Health.

Between the four, the midwives reckon they have delivered 3,500 babies.

In the past, their fees were $2, but they were getting $50 a delivery recently.

One of them, Mrs. Hattie Miller, 70, of West Point, said she has been practicing for about 35 years. She said she planned to continue midwifery in neighboring Alabama where she still has a license.

RICKY'S WORLD

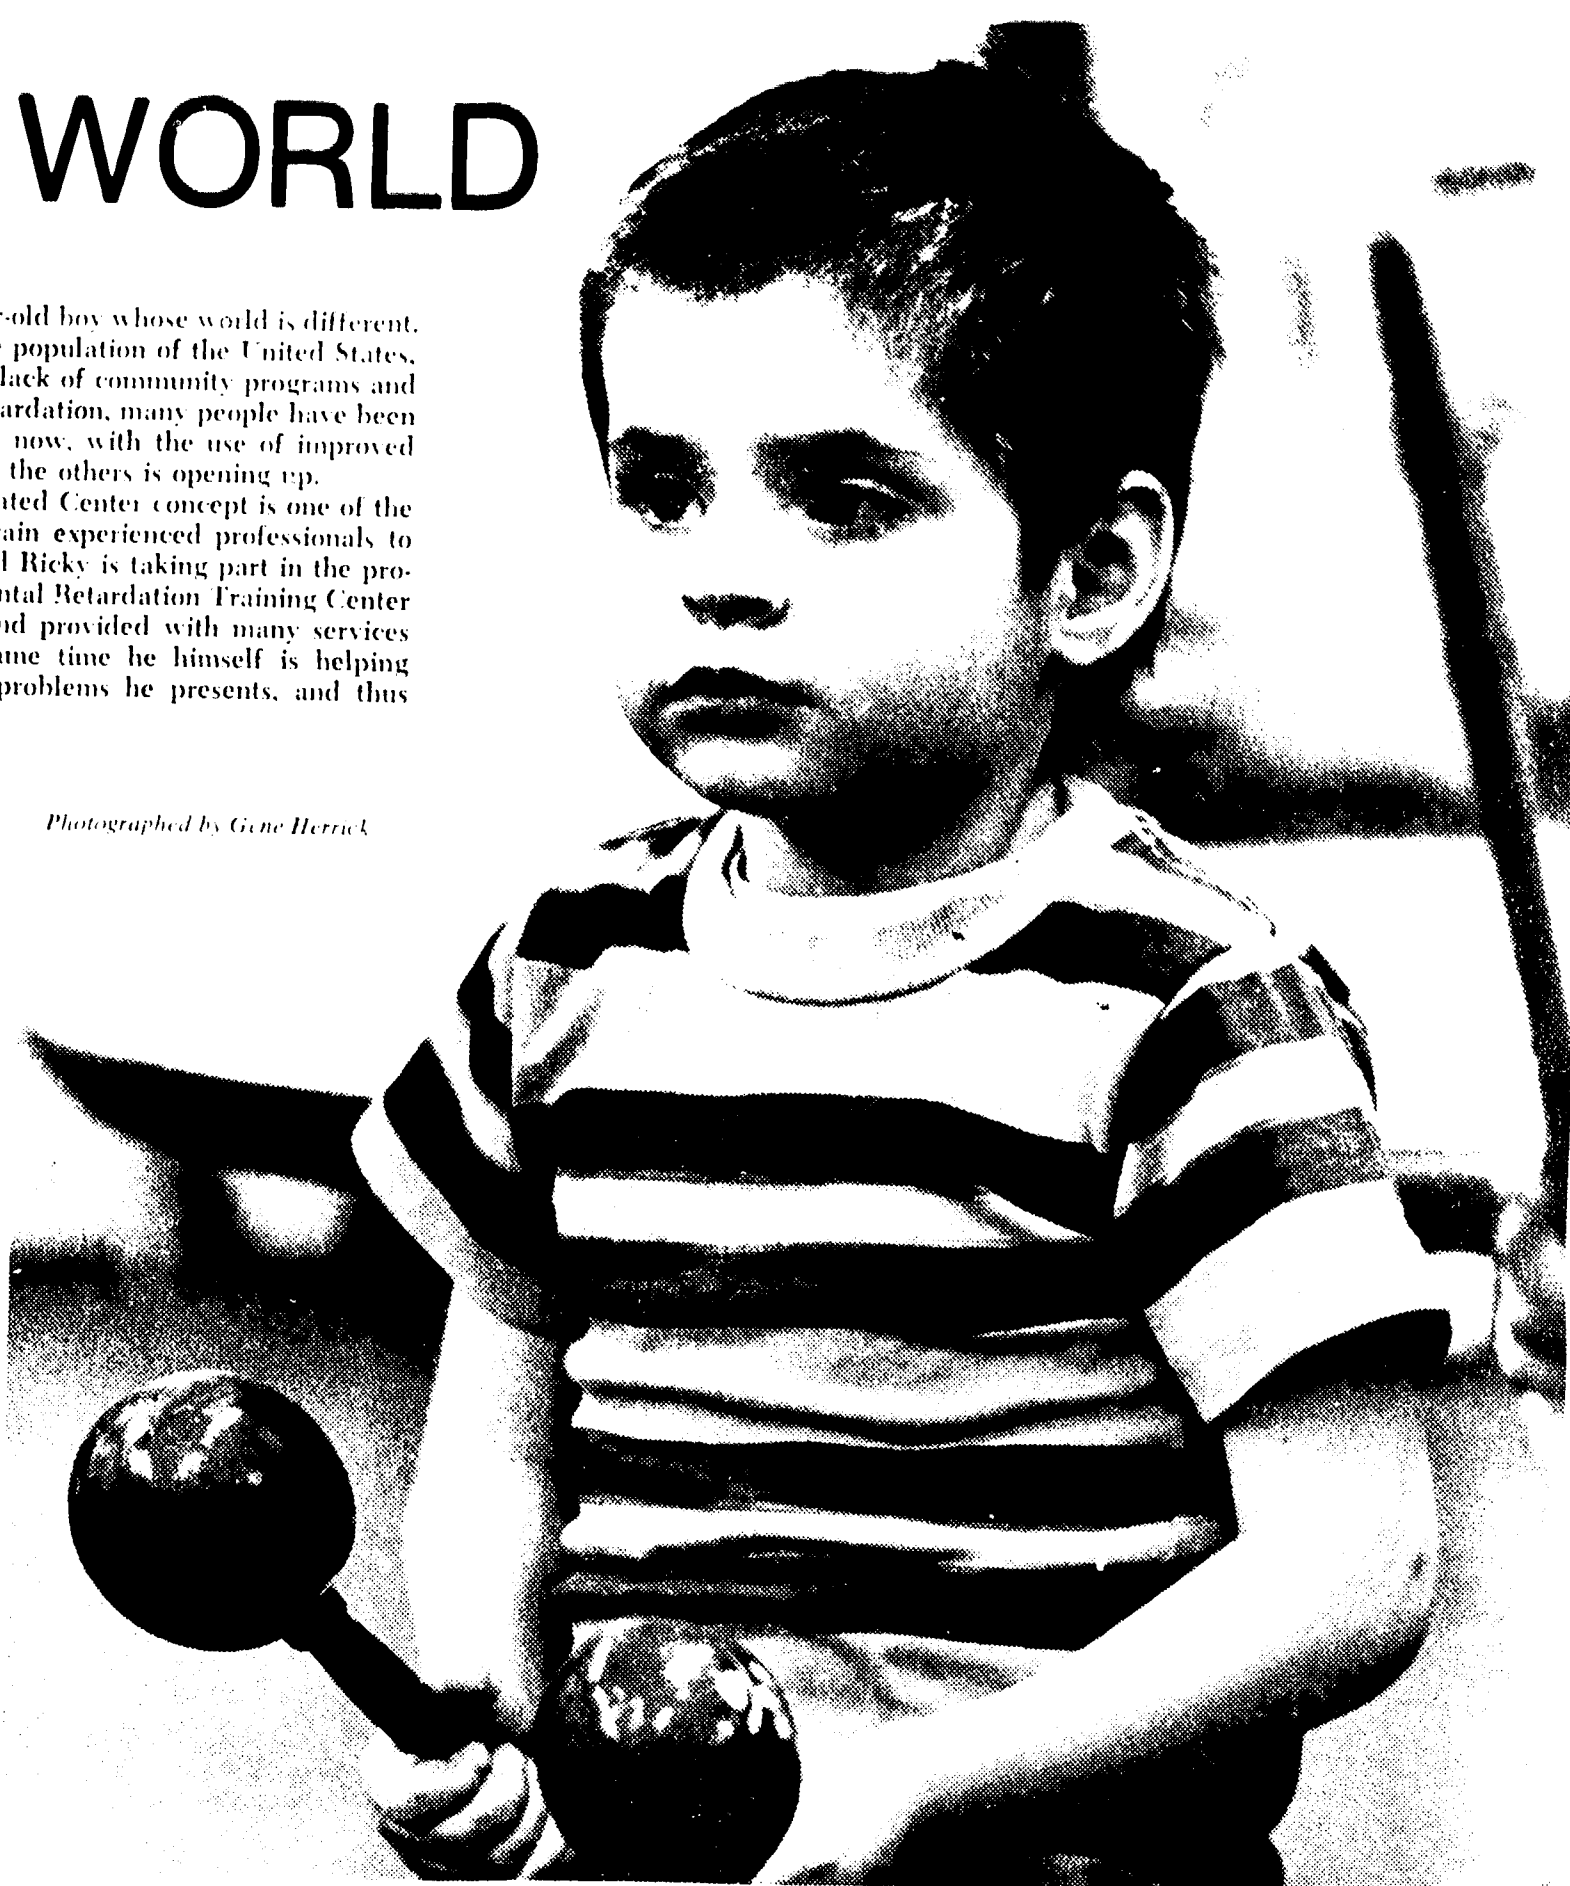

Ricky Cummings is a little 5½-year-old boy whose world is different. Like about three per cent of the population of the United States, he's mentally retarded. Because of a lack of community programs and a lack of understanding of mental retardation, many people have been inappropriately institutionalized. But now, with the use of improved techniques, Ricky's world and that of the others is opening up.

The nationwide University Affiliated Center concept is one of the new programs being developed to train experienced professionals to work with the mentally retarded. And Ricky is taking part in the program at the Ohio State University Mental Retardation Training Center in Columbus. He's been evaluated and provided with many services through the center—while at the same time he himself is helping students learn how to manage the problems he presents, and thus eventually to help others.

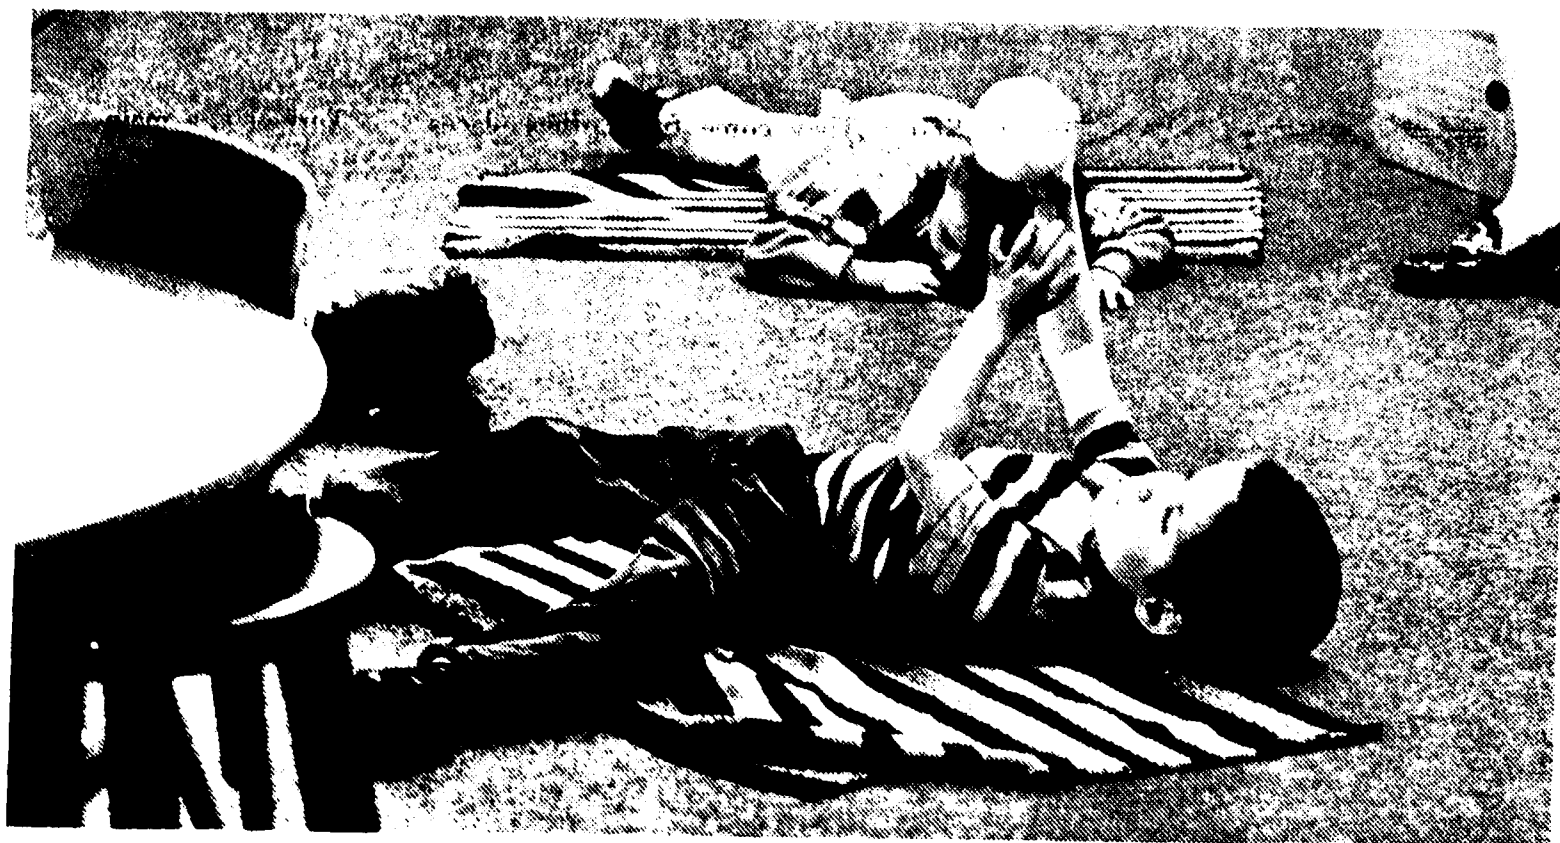

Photographed by Gene Herrick

Above: student teacher and Ricky learn together how to handle the balancing board. Below: time to lie down for a rest—not always to sleep!

Ricky's world is opening up: above, he joins in the music making. Below, learning to identify objects becomes the naming game.

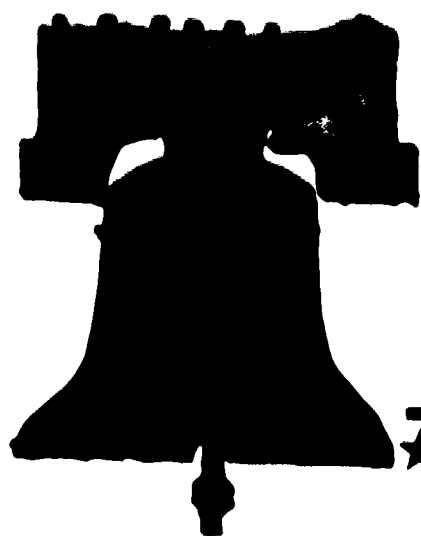

The biggest ball, below, provides another helpful game. Guided by the physical therapist, Ricky practices balance.

Ricky's parents attend and take part in sessions at the training center. At the end of the day they all go home together, below.

Drugs 1972

Crackdown Step by step, your present administration is getting somewhere in its efforts to batter down the drug racket.

It is one of the toughest assignments the government of the United States has undertaken.

DRUG ABUSE is one of the most urgent and until recently, one of the most neglected.

Hardly any of the hard drugs originate in the United States. They come from other places . . . Turkey is a main original source and France a leading transit country.

NOW, a formal understanding has been accepted with 14 other European countries to "Turn the heat on narcotics smuggling"

It is just one more step - but they all count. No form of CRIME is more deadlier to society than the drug racket. Any step designed to curb it deserves loud cheers.
